Meet our King and Queen

Mark Solomon and Jeanne Clothiaux are the King and Queen of the 2011 Moscow Renaissance Fair. They were selected by the fair organizers to honor their years of service to the community.

Mark moved to Moscow in 1976 to work as a blacksmith and welder. He was a founding member of the fair's first governing board, and played a vital role in the establishment of the fair. His flatbed truck, a unique vehicle with a huge fire-breathing steel dragon's head in place of the original truck cab, became the fair's main stage in 1980.

With his artfully-wrought steel staff and pointed leather hat, he assumed the persona of the Wizard at the fair.

His donations and participation shaped the fair as a community celebration. He purchased the fair's Earth Ball. Mark was disassembling the Potlatch Corporation lumber mill in the town of Potlatch and donated the large timbers to make the stage (recently named the Peter Basoa Stage) attached to the restrooms at East City Park in 1984. In addition to providing the lumber, he led the design and construction crews that built the stage that is still used today.

Mark is now a graduate student at the University of Idaho. He expects to receive his Ph.D. in water resources in December of 2011.

Jeanne Clothiaux moved to Moscow in 1998 and opened the Red Door restaurant downtown. She immediately became involved in a variety of community groups, serving as a board member of Friends of the Clearwater, the Moscow Civic Association, and Buy Local Moscow.

More recently, she co-founded 3 Tall Women Promotions with Kim Barnes and Kelly Quinnett. This group promotes quality theatre in the Palouse, including plays suited for a contemporary audience brought to life by professional and emerging actors.

Jeanne is completing a masters' degree in philosophy at the University of Idaho. Her focus is on theories of knowledge relating to the healing arts.

Mark Solomon and Jeanne Clothiaux were married at their home near the peak of Moscow Mountain in 2002. They are expecting their first child on June 12.

Poster Contest Winners

1st Place Promotional Poster: Lolly Radtke

Lolly Radtke is a high school freshman born and raised in Eastern Washington. Her family includes her parents, older sister and her cat, Koda. When she was very young, Lolly loved to watch her sister draw and took up the pencil herself as soon as she was old enough to hold one.

Although art is her passion, she hasn't taken an art class and is almost entirely self-taught. Because she never knows when the mood to draw might strike, she is never without a sketchbook. She often draws by hand but her preferred medium is digital painting. She describes her style as a fusion of cartoon, realism, and manga but she constantly explores a variety of themes.

Lolly is a self-professed geek and science fiction nerd. Her educational goal is to become an engineer but she intends to continue to create art. Recently, Lolly has begun working on a weekly science fiction web comic, All Systems Go, which can be found at www.asgcomic.com.

2nd Place Program Cover Art: Laura Graden

Originally from the southern part of the state, Laura fell in love with art and design at the University of Idaho. She enjoys sketching, watercolor, and working with various digital media. She most enjoys sketching in Europe. She was inspired for the poster by a bird chirping on her balcony. Laura will graduate May 14 with a Bachelor's of Science in architecture, minor in art.

The Fair is Ever Green!

One of the best things about the Moscow Renaissance Fair is that every piece of serviceware, cups, utensils, plates, straws, and napkins, is 100% compostable. Please take the time to put ALL unused food, beverage and serviceware in the compost bins. All other items can be recycled as appropriate. The Fair thanks you. The earth thanks you. Future generations will think of you with love and admiration. With your help, we can make the Moscow Renaissance Fair a completely waste-free celebration of spring. Thanks.

The Moscow Renaissance Fair is entirely funded by its artisans, food vendors, volunteers, and the generosity of folks like you.

The info booth will be accepting donations for this year's poster. All donations will go to making next year's event even better! Thanks for your support!
